THE SEA AND THE MOON.

BY FRANK J. OTTARSON. The Sea fell in love with the Moon; The Moon only laughed at the Bea, And went on, turning midnight to noon, And silvering hill-top and lea.

"Look down, lovely Moon," said the Sea : " Behold our own beautiful face: Tis so pure and so charming to me In my heart I have given it place."

She looked, with a flush of disdain; Her glorious image was there; And she knew-for a woman is vain-That the image was spotless and fair. Away sped the Moon in her splendor:

But oft and again she would turn, With glance growing more and more tende To the Sea, where her image did burn. There trembled the silvery illusion;

Nay, Moon, do not quiver nor start; 'Tis the tremor of Love's soft confusiou, The throb of the Sea's faithful heart. And the Moon, would remember and ponde

The vision she saw in the wave; As away round the world she would wander. And she knew that the Sea was her slave,

And month after month, when returning, In her full she would glory again, Her face in the ocean still burning Gave the Moon a slight feeling of pain.

Still the Sea followed sorrowing after. His breast swelling over with love, His sighs waking only the laughter Of the Moon sailing queenly above.

Though ages on ages have perished, Still Love sings the changeless old tune, And with passion still faithfully cherished The Sea follows after the Moon.

Follows after till cruel shores stay him, Then breaks his great heart with a sigh : For the fates ever mock and delay him Whose aim is unwise and too high.

"How shall I have my bonnet trimmed, asked Maria, "so that it shall agree with my complexion?" "If you want it to match your face, have it plain," replied the hateful Hattie.

"I believe," said a Galveston justice to a rough-looking customer, "that all the scoundrels in Galveston are harbored in your den," "I never saw you there yet, jedge."

A certain Chinaman gave a dinner party The viands were not to his taste. He rose from the table, asked to be excused for a few moments, and left the room with the remark, "Must lickee wife," This was not in China.

"Why, Franky!" exclaimed the mother at the summer boarding house, "I never knew you to ask for a second piece of pie at home." "I knew " " "I knew " " " I knew " I knew " " " I knew replied Franky, quietly, as he proceeded Preaching to-morrow at 1012 a. m. by the at home." "I knew it wasn't no use,"

A stranger in a country village chanced to pass the graveyard just as the sexton was performing his duties, and, with a view to knowledge, addressed the old man: "I see you have had a funeral. May I inquire of what complaint the person died?" The sexton replied: "There wasn't no complaint. Everybody 'pears to be satisfied."

There was a large boiler of scalding water over a fire in the yard and several black imps playing near it. Suddenly a shrill voice was heard from inside the shauty: "You Gawge Washington keep away from dat ar biler. D'rectly you is gwine ter upset de biler all over yerself, and yez will be de fust one to say, 'Twan't me, mammy.

"Edward," said a mother to her son of eight, who was trundling a hoop in the front yard, "you mus'n't go out of the gate into the street." "No, ma, I won't," the reply, A few minutes afterwad she saw Edward in the street manufacturing mud-pies, and at once went out to him. "Didn't I tell you," she said angrily, "not to go through the gate?" Well, I didn't mother," was the very satisfactory reply; "I climbed over the fence!"

It was at a late quarterly meeting of Seventh Day Baptist churches, in Wisconsin, that two clergymen were to present papers on the same day and the question of precedence having arisen, Mr. A. sprang to his feet and said, "I think Brother B. ought to have the best place on the programme; he is an older man than I am and, besides, is full of his subject."
When the audience remembered that Brother B.'s subject was "The Devil," a cheerful smile seemed to beam around the

A gentleman made up his mind that he would give his wife a pleasant surprise by spending the evening at home. After supper he settled himself down for a cozy time in the besom of his family. He had no more than comfortably fixed himself when his wife abruptly asked him if his friends didn't want him any longer. Then his mother-in-law asked him if he had exhausted his credit. The servant asked him if he was ill. One of the neighbors wanted to know if he had any trouble and was afraid of the law, All of which occurred in twenty minutes, for in exactly half an hour he was beyond questioning range in his club.

Indigestion. The main cause of nervousness is indigestion, and that is caused by weakness of the stomach. No one can have sound nerves and good health without using Hop Bitters to strengthen the stomach, purify the blood, and keep the liver and kidneys active, to carry off all the poisonous and waste matter of the system. See other column.

The Chicago Times says: Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is highly endorsed by ministers, judges, physicians, surgeons, by men of literary and scholarly distinction, and by individuals in all the walks of life.
